Yogurt Escape Donates Money To CSF And Raffles Off Prizes

Yogurt Escape celebrated its official grand opening with a weekend of giveaways. The Yogurt Escape team donated $1,000 to the Coronado Schools Foundation on Jan. 16.

Several students showed up for the event, alongside Patty Cowan, executive director of the Coronado Schools Foundation, to receive the donation. Students spooned at their yogurts while taking a moment to pose for a picture, capturing the day's festivities.

Yogurt Escape continued the celebration on Jan. 17 with the Big Giveaway. Twenty-one lucky winners were drawn and Jamie Hughes, a Coronado local, was the big winner, taking home a brand new Holland's beach cruiser. Jamie, alongside a group of friends, stopped by to claim his prize and pose for a shot with his new cruiser. Twenty second prize winners received $10 gift cards to Yogurt Escape.

suggested an anti-spyware program called Webroot.

Rob Crenshaw, with Crenshaw Associates, creates Web sites for clients who have a small company and desire a Web presence to meet their business needs.

Crenshaw's entire business rests on the health of his two computers, so he uses a security program called PlumChoice and an online backup service offered by Carbonite.

For around $50 a year, Carbonite checks your computer for new files while it is idle and backs them up remotely, transferring content to a secure server. If Crenshaw ever loses an important account, his backup service can retrieve it.

PlumChoice is an anti-virus and security suite that offers another useful feature with the paid version: optimization support from PlumChoice technicians. In other words, your subscription fee includes IT advice even beyond the scope of the anti-virus and spyware programs. Customers can ask tech support questions as one of the services included in the subscription fee.

Several virus-protection programs or software bundles are available for free online, provided the software is just for home use. Many of the other major security software companies, like Symantec (Norton) and McAfee (FreeScan) offer some sort of trial version or free search tool. Windows Live OneCare is another free trial that offers users a glimpse of the program's anti-virus and anti-spyware programs, as well as a few other features.

While these trials or basic versions usually offer limited protection compared to the full version, a trial with one of these basic tools can help PC users decide if they want to pay for a year's subscription.

To download AVG Anti-Virus Free Edition, visit free.avg.com. For a free trial spyware scan using Webroot, visit the Webroot Spy Sweeper Web site at www.webroot.com and select the Free Scan/Trials option. At www.plumchoice.com, there is an option for a month-long free trial of the SmartPlan software.
